

57/56 BC

by Caesar

Caesar sent SERVIUS GALBA with the 12th Legion to open a pass through the ALPS, which the NANTUATES, VERAGRIANS and SEDUNIANS were holding. He wanted this pass open for Roman merchants. Galba, despite one defeat, fought a successful campaign and established a garrison.

The Venetians protested a grain Tax and gathered the other seacoast tribes in a war rebellion. Caesar in this battle depended on his NAVY. The Roman fleet was victorious & the Venetians defeated. Caesar, deciding to punish the tribe, killed as well as slaves the members of the VENETIAN SENATE.

Caesar then campaigned against the mutinous tribes of MORINI & MENAPPI. He chased them to their home in the hills & ravaged the countryside.

56 BC

Caesar was * *

675 AD

~~697~~

698

✓

In Gaul

Reconquered the VENETI

Patched up Pompeii / crossed the channel

With 56-55 Menapii were temporarily expelled from their home by two indigenous German peoples, the USIPETES & TENCTERI

Spring 56 BC

Cicero announced his support for a tribune who had assailed the notorious Campanian land-law of Caeser's Consulship.

Here, he overplayed his hand, for this only served to remind all the triumvirs that they still needed one another's help:

The Campanian land-law had been for Pompey's victories

Early
April 56 BC

Cicero proceeded to Laverma, just inside Cisalpine Gaul where he met Caesar and warned him of Cicero's hostile intentions.

56-55 BC

Jan/Hist

Revolts of Alexander b. ARISTOBULUS and Aristobulus

Spring 56 BC

Pompey & Crassus were persuaded to renew and continue the old association; both also became consuls.

Caesar was assigned Gaul for a further five years.

Caesar's legate was SULPICIUS GALBA
Caesar had to dash from one corner of Gaul to the other, seldom on horseback and usually in a litter. He dictated virtually without stopping; and several secretaries wrote down his words.

56Bc

Battle or Veneti near Coast of France in more Cenlabricum (Atlantic)

56Bk

Cross defeated the Aquitani

He occupied Brittany & Normandy

Slp
~~SSBC~~

The Aquitani, he overran at the first attempt, for they too had tried to shake off the Roman yoke.